BRUBAKER SCENIC DESIGN

Dale Brubaker is a scenic designer with more than 30 years experience in theatrical, exhibition, special decoration, and museum exhibit design. Dale's background and training are grounded in commercial art, technical theatre, scenic and lighting design, applied primarily – for most of his professional career – to the museum and convention industries.

After working for several years in the printing, publishing and advertising industry, Dale attended Palm Beach Junior College to pursue commercial art. It was there that he discovered theatre as another creative avenue for his artistic talent.

Dale initially began designing the advertisements, posters and programs for college productions, but was soon approached to design scenery for the main stage plays as well. It was then that Dale made the decision to pursue a degree in technical theatre and design.

Dale received a BFA degree in Technical/Design Theatre from Florida Atlantic University in 1980, having been the recipient of a scholarship endowed by one of the masters of technical theatre and professor emeritus, Harold Burris-Meyer. During his time at FAU, Dale was fortunate to be selected to design the sets for two main stage play productions and lighting design for a third.

While still an undergraduate, he became a journeyman member of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (IATSE). He has worked in all technical areas of theatre in over seventy-five productions.

During the summer of 1978, Dale was accepted as a design intern at the prestigious Williamstown Theatre Festival, then under the artistic direction of Nikos Psacharopoulos in affiliation with the Yale School of Drama and New York University; he was soon promoted to the paid position of Assistant Designer.

As Assistant Designer, Dale worked closely with the Scenic Designer and was responsible for acquiring stage props, set dressing, and for producing scenic and special construction requirements for each stage production. Utilizing his scenic and commercial art capabilities, Dale was also tapped to produce banners and signage promoting the theatre and current productions.

While an undergraduate student at Florida Atlantic University, Dale began his professional career as a scenic designer at the Burt Reynolds Dinner Theatre in Jupiter, Florida – designing some of the first productions mounted there. During this same period he was also contracted to teach stagecraft and design the set for a theatre production at the College of Boca Raton.

Graduating from FAU, Dale moved to Atlanta, to pursue scenic design work while continuing to design sets for the Burt Reynolds Dinner Theatre. Soon after, Dale was awarded a graduate assistantship in the Theatre Department, at the University of Georgia where he furthered his studies in lighting design.

BRUBAKER SCENIC DESIGN

As the hub for corporate commerce in the south, Atlanta introduced Dale to the numerous design opportunities available in the related field of “business theatre,” and in 1982 he accepted a position as Design Director for the southeast region branch offices of the Freeman Decorating Company supervising the design of tradeshows, exhibits, international pavilions, and special event decoration.

Since 1988 Dale Brubaker has been the principal of Brubaker Incorporated (d.b.a. Brubaker Design) - a multi-disciplinary design studio with primary focus in the development, design, and production coordination of museum exhibits, exhibitions, theme decoration, and scenic environments.

Throughout the years, Dale has continued to draw upon his theatre training in his approach to exhibit design. A few examples of museum and tradeshow exhibits that incorporate scenic art, staged environments, and theatrical techniques can be seen here. A portfolio of Brubaker Design selected projects can be viewed at www.brubakerdesign.net.

Having fully explored the path from theatre to convention tradeshow design to museum exhibits, Dale has come full circle and is now eager to return to his roots: to work in a theatrical environment and pursue his passion for scenic and lighting design.
